

Carolina ARMAGEDDON! LAN Party
DISCLAIMER AGREEMENT and PARENT PERMISSION

Carolina ARMAGEDDON! (The Event), its organizers (Carolina Computer Gaming Association i.e., CCGA), members and staff cannot and will not be held liable for any/all damage or injury to participants' equipment or person while traveling to/from the event or Quality Suites (the Event Location). This includes, but is not limited to their time at the event, their time at the event location before, during, or after the event, and/or any time in transit to or from the event or event location. The owners and operators of the event location are hereby released, in addition to the event organizers, members, and staff, from any/all liability and/or claims with respect to damage to person or property. Participants' equipment and personal safety and/or health and well-being are their sole, personal responsibility.

Further, the CCGA cannot and will not be held responsible for any game or intellectual property piracy occurring before, during, or after the event. It cannot and will not be the CCGA's responsibilities to monitor machines and network traffic in search of such activity or behavior. Software/game/program piracy is illegal and must be understood that participants are responsible for the software/games/programs that are in their machines before, during, and after the event. Pirating software, games, programs, or other items of intellectual property is not condoned or supported.

The viewing of pornographic material is prohibited at the event and all CCGA events. Understand that if caught viewing or making available pornographic materials to anyone during the event, participants will be reprimanded and further action taken if necessary.

Participants are required to have anti-viral software and current definitions installed and active at the event. If a virus or other malicious code becomes available in the "wild" on the LAN due to this event, know that the CCGA will cooperate with the federal, state, and local authorities with respect to giving information that they might request in order to locate the individual or individuals who created/carried such virus or malicious code. If a participant is determined to be one of the individuals or sole individual responsible for the virus code or codes exposure to the LAN, that participant will be asked to run a current system virus scan and will not be allowed to continue to participate until the virus is removed. Participants may be banned from attending future CCGA events until such time as the virus or malicious code is removed from their machine or as seen fit by the event organizers and staff.

If any participant conduct violates the rules and regulations as established by the CCGA, they will be reprimanded and further action taken if necessary. Included among those types of behavior that are not acceptable are those activities deemed disruptive or destructive in nature, and those are disturbing to other gamers. These rules have been listed on the CCGA website (www.carolinagaming.com), and will be posted at the event. However, the appropriateness of actions/behavior will be determined in an individual basis, and event organizers and staff will make the final decisions as to the degree of action necessary to correct the situation. Should a participant be asked to leave the event at any time because of their conduct or behavior, their entrance fee will not be refunded.

By attending a CCGA event, each participant implicitly grants the CCGA and its sponsors' rights to use their image, likeness, and name for the purpose of promoting future LAN events and gaming products.

NOTE: This completed, signed form must accompany anyone wishing to attend a CCGA event for each CCGA event. Age does not matter. For those under 17 years of age, the parent section must be filled out completely by the parent and must accompany him/her at each CCGA event. CCGA is not responsible for checking to make sure the parent's signature is legitimate and not responsible for ensuring that the parent remains at the event.
